The Developmental Disabilities Division is presently working on its reorganization plan. The target date for submission of the reorganization plan is August 31, 2006.

In the reorganization plan, three branches are being proposed:

1. Case Management Branch
2. Resource Support and Development Branch
3. Compliance Liaison/QA Branch

These Branches will reflect the Developmental Disabilities Division’s:

a) case management function;
b) needs assessment and resource development functions;
c) quality assurance and compliance functions.

The input from the strategic planning groups and many staff has been invaluable in realigning our planned organizational structure with our mission.

It is early afternoon on an intermittently rainy day at Waimea Valley Audubon Center and two volunteers are working to remove dead invasive vines from a fence line. Dirty work and hard? Maybe, but both volunteers are having fun with the tasks and both are getting far more from the experience than the value of the work they are doing. As each rain squall passes over, one volunteer, in a power wheelchair, raises his umbrella. The other volunteer, able-bodied if a bit decrepit, ducks under a nearby tree. Suddenly and for the next hour, a Shama thrush perches less than a foot above in the same tree and sings his complete, breathtaking and achingly beautiful repertoire for what seems to be no other reason than to pass the time. These moments are just one part of the volunteer experience for us.

Cisco and I have been volunteering at Waimea Valley Audubon Center for about a year and a half. Cisco is an engaging young man who is challenged by multiple physical and mental disabilities and I am his former Skills Trainer and present Personal Assistant and, most important, friend. Our goal when we first started volunteering at Waimea was to give Cisco the opportunity for a more structured and meaningful volunteer experience than that he had known on a very limited basis at school. Kelly Perry, our Waimea Volunteer Coordinator, took the time to interview Cisco and me and carefully chose several tasks that matched Cisco’s capabilities and Waimea’s needs. We tried every suggested task, eliminated those that didn’t work so well for us, and now volunteer twice a week as Na Poe Kokua (a sort of trail guide who greets visitors, answers questions, carries a first aid kit and radio and monitors conditions in the valley), weed pullers, composters and endangered Moor Hen researchers.

It has been a joy to watch Cisco succeed at these jobs and feel proud of his efforts. He and I both relish the beauty and peace of the valley. I have volunteered for several other non-profit organizations and have, in turn, managed a small cadre of volunteers for two non-profits. What makes the volunteer experience such a success at Waimea, I think, is the support and appreciation expressed constantly to us by the paid staff. We are never made to feel as though we are second-class. Also, the work we do was not invented just to keep volunteers busy and engaged; it is real work that meets the organization’s real needs. Most important, however, is the fact that in our particular case, the work is matched and adapted to the skills and challenges we bring to it.

We are two volunteers who are very happy with our volunteer experience!

Respectfully and with Aloha,
Susan Kono & Cisco Welch
CHRISTMAS TREATS GALORE FOR SUNNY BUDDIES

CHRISTMAS TREATS GALORE

Buddies were treated to visits from Winnie-the-Pooh, Tigger, Mickey and Minnie Mouse, Barney, Elmo, Lani Moo and others. They participated in Christmas ornament and picture frame making, and spin the wheel for a prize. Having photos taken with Santa was a big hit.

The treats were made possible courtesy of PCAH, who generously donated thirty tickets to Sunny Buddies. Even Santa had a treat – a great big hug from Peter!

The DD CONSUMER SERVICES OFFICE

The Developmental Disabilities Consumer Services Office is a component of the DD Division’s Quality Assurance System and is a part of the DD Division’s effort to improve quality of care and quality of life for people with disabilities. The DD Consumer Services Office (CSO) primary function is to field complaints, concerns, and/or issues from individuals with developmental disabilities, mental retardation, autism, Neurotrauma/Traumatic Brain Injury, family members, guardians, circles of supports, providers, concerned citizens, state workers, etc. and to facilitate reporting of these complaints and issues of concern. These are issues, which have not been resolved at the case management unit level, provider level, or systems level. The office monitors these occurrences for systemic improvements, enabling the DD Division and its staff to effectively and efficiently provide services to its consumers, families and providers. The DD Consumer Services Office generates an analysis of performance indicators and outcome measures as a method of identifying trends to prevent reoccurrence and suggest revisions to relevant rules, policies and procedures that would improve system performance.
The first ever Neurotrauma Conference For Families and Survivors of Traumatic Brain Injury, Spinal Cord Injury and Stroke was held on May 25, 2006 at Renaissance Ilikai Waikiki Hotel. There were close to 130 participants and 15 exhibitors.

Presentations included a PowerPoint by Dr. Linda Rosen of DOH on Neurotrauma in Hawaii, and topics on community leisure, coping with emotions, public benefits, brain booster tips, and transitions for students with neurotrauma injuries.

The Conference was emceed wonderfully by Karen Seth from Queen’s Medical Center Neuroscience Institute. Scotty Sagum was the keynote speaker and spoke on his recovery from a stroke. A panel of individuals who sustained a TBI (Natasha), a spinal cord injury (Matthew), and a stroke (Scotty) shared their experiences on how they survived and succeeded.

The Conference was emceed wonderfully by Karen Seth from Queen’s Medical Center Neuroscience Institute. Scotty Sagum was the keynote speaker and spoke on his recovery from a stroke. A panel of individuals who sustained a TBI (Natasha), a spinal cord injury (Matthew), and a stroke (Scotty) shared their experiences on how they survived and succeeded. Graduates from the George Washington University distance learning certificate program and acquired brain injury and special ed. were acknowledged and spoke on how they would use the knowledge gained to help the brain injured community. Hob Osterlund, a clinical nurse, from Queen’s Medical Center was the inspirational speaker and she spoke on how humor could be part of a person’s treatment and recovery. And Dr. David Fray, Chief, DD Division closed by informing the audience on what is next for neurotrauma.

Overall comments for the conference were quite positive and participants were especially touched and inspired by the survivors. And there were some suggestions of topics people would like to see in the future with more information on TBI and stroke, coping techniques, brain exercises, guardianship, financial services, independent living, and prevention. Many thanks to all that participated in this conference – survivors, family members, friends, and service providers. Kudos and much appreciation to those members of

The TBI Implementation Grant has just completed its evaluation phase and the final report will be out soon. DOH staff attended the Annual Federal TBI Program State Grantee Meeting in March in Maryland. Topics of discussion included Grants Management and Post Award Reporting, Developing Effective Public Education and Identification, and the Effectiveness and Challenges of Information and Referral Systems.

The new TBI Grant has been approved and a Peer Mentoring project out of the Rehabilitation Hospital of the Pacific is being planned. For this a TBI survivor/advocate will serve as a mentor for a TBI patient who is soon to be discharged.

If you are interested in becoming a mentor or would like more information on this project, call the Neurotrauma Helpline at 453-6151.
