Accessible design elements in the courtrooms:

- The witnesses position is elevated and is accessed by a concealed foldout ramp. When the ramp is not in use, the closed ramp forms a step to access the platform.
- Where the courtroom has a two-tiered jury box, an accessible juror position is located on the main floor level. The accessible position is provided to accommodate a wheelchair. A low rail is provided at the front of the jury box. A portion of rail located in front of the accessible position swings out to accommodate maneuvering into the jury box. When the accessible position is not in use, a movable seat is provided.
